PROBED THEIR SECRETS.

A Carson Boy Rips up the Beef Combine.

Some weeks ago the New York Journal sent Robert H. Davis, formerly connected with the APPEAL, to Chicago to get at the inside of the big beef combine, who had brought such scandal on the Administration.
He went to Chicago and there secured possession of the cipher dispatches sent by Armour & Co. to their Washington agents, who were manipulating their beef contracts with the government. He secured the key to these cipher dispatches and translated them and the dispatches laying bare the secrets of the beef combine were printed in full in the New York Journal.

The Journal of the 20th says editorially:

The Journal has been engaged for many weeks in conducting an investigation of its own. It has gathered testimony tending to show that there was in Washington at the time the more important contracts were let a well-organized coterie of men who had the ear of the Commissary Department of the War Office, and who succeeded in securing advantageous beef contracts for preferred firms. It being distinctly understood that the quality of the beef delivered was not material and would not be inquired into.

If the Commissioners now assembled are sincerely willing to investigate, the Journal will be glad to place the evidence it has collected at their disposal.

A representative of the Journal, now has all the telegrams and documents bearing on the matter, is now in Washington ready to be summoned as a witness. His name is Robert H. Davis, and he can be quickly reached at the Arlington hotel. It was he who collected as a regular representative of the Journal the testimony it is desired to submit. We assure the Commissioners that it is important and convincing.

To still further facilitate the investigation demanded by the nation, the Journal has retained the services of former Judge, Roger A. Pryor, to go on its behalf before the Commission. Judge Pryor will be in attendance in Washington during the inquiry, and will devote all his eminent talents to determining the responsibility for the scandal. Under these circumstances the people may expect some results.

Mr. Slow—"Where did you get that overcoat?"

Mr. Deaden—"Why Slow old man anyone can wear an overcoat, the Emporium has a sale on and they are dirt cheap."

THE SWELL

I am firmly of the belief that the people who pay a bit, long or short, for a glass of liquor are entitled to the best the market affords.

The profit on a single glass of poor liquor is much larger than on a single glass of good liquor. The profits on a days run of a large number of glasses of good liquor are the profits I am looking for.

I hold the same view in connection with Cigars. My cigars are Imported and my Liquors pre-imported.
